From Day to Day

MY WIFE.

O love, O wife, thing eyes are they—
My spring from out whose shining grey from the sweetest smiles streams
That feed my life's bright Lake of Dreams.

Oval and large and passion pure
And eyes and large and honest—
Soft as a dying violet-breath
Yet equally unafraid of death.

Throated, like two doves—of coat
And eyes and large and honest—
Soft as a dying violet-breath
Yet equally unafraid of death.

With wife's and mother's and girl
And home loves and high glory-love
And science-love and story-love.

And loves for all that God and man
And art and nature make or plan.
And half-loves for sidery lace
And broderies and supple grace.

And diamonds and the whole sweet
Of little that large life compound.
And loves for tired and God's bare Truth.

And loves for Magdalen and Ruth.
Dear eyes, dear eyes and rare—
Being heaven sweet and earthly
I marvel that God made you mine,
For when he frowns, 'tis then 'ye shine!—
Sidney Lanier.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN.
A party of about seventy women, delegates of the National Council of Women, arrived in Vancouver today, having stopped at Winnipeg, Brandon and Calgary upon their way to the coast, where the convention will held this year.

Will return by Edmonton.
The session, over which Lady Edgerton, the president, will preside, will continue for several days next week, the party returning here by Edmonton.

The full list of delegates is as follows:
President, Lady Edgerton; provincial representatives for Ontario, Mrs. Woodhouse, Hamilton; provincial vice-president for Manitoba, Mrs. McEwen, Brandon; provincial vice-president for Alberta, Mrs. C. S. Edwards, Medicine Hat; recording secretary, M. D. Bickel, Montreal; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. B. Cunningham, Toronto; convener of standing committees—Mrs. John N. Elliott, Brown, Toronto.

Representatives of council in national council: Miss Edgerton, I. Land, Miss Mutch; Halifax; Mrs. Dennis, Mrs. Anshutz; St. John; Mrs. McEwen, Mrs. Campbell; Mr. Miller, Mrs. Austin, Montreal; Mrs. Levy, Mrs. C. S. Scott, Mrs. Porter; Mrs. George Green, Mrs. S. D. in that of Brandon, where excellent work is now being done in the rescue and reformation of the neglected children of that city.

It was in May, 1903, that the Ontario Legislature passed an act providing, among other things, for the appointment in various sections of the Province, of committees to look over the field and report as to the advisability of forming what is now known as a Children's Aid Society.

The result was the organization of many of these institutions at various points, with much accompanying good.

In the thirteen years that this work has been in progress in Ontario, over fifty societies have rescued 4,000 children, who are now enjoying the privilege of a good home, good training and Christian influences.

The Children's Aid Society tries to secure justice for every child, to prevent cruelty to or neglect of children, and to encourage a deep sense of parental responsibility to provide family homes rather than institutions for homeless children by urging upon good people the Christian duty and privilege of taking into their hearts a fatherless child and giving him or her for a time of usefulness.

Among those most frequently coming to the attention of the Children's Aid Society are the following: Foundlings who are abandoned by their parents; children who are abandoned by their parents; children who are abandoned by their parents; children who are abandoned by their parents.

MOVEMENT FOR CHILDREN'S AID.

Society in Edmonton—Need of Such an Organization Becoming Apparent

A movement is on foot in the city to establish a Children's Aid Society in Edmonton, similar to those that now exist in many of the Ontario cities. The prime movers in Edmonton are City Commissioner Kinsman and Chief of Police Major Heale, each of whom has recently given considerable attention to the question.

That there is some need for such a society is evident from the frequency with which children whose parents are unable to care for them, come to the attention of the police officers. Under present conditions there is no adequate means for caring for such unfortunate, and as a result they are frequently allowed to go their way, and if saved from lives of crime or shame it is more than chance that because of provision made for their care.

A branch of the Children's Aid Society, which has attracted the attention of Major Heale particularly, agency would be allowed to grow up on the streets and ultimately to drift into reformatories and prisons, neglected children whose parents have been frequently convicted of crime, and who are sent out to beg and steal; children given away by parents or guardians to irresponsible parties and afterwards found to be ill-treated and over-worked, orphans or half-orphans, left without proper care; wayward children who may be saved from further wrong doing by timely intervention.

Before seeking the establishment of such children every effort is made to prevail upon the parents to themselves discharge their most natural and sacred obligations. The whole spirit of the Society's work is to serve and purify family home life, and in hundreds of instances the desired remedy is brought about by encouraging, reasoning with, or it may be, warning those who would shirk their responsibility.

The Children's Aid Society, by its timely intervention, has made the home life of thousands of children happier and purer. It is only a very small proportion of cases that are brought to the attention of the Society's work is to serve and purify family home life, and in hundreds of instances the desired remedy is brought about by encouraging, reasoning with, or it may be, warning those who would shirk their responsibility.

Compassion Kenneth intends shortly to visit the matter with the Humane Society and with its assistance do something to place Edmonton in a better position with regard to the care of its neglected children.

CUMBERS OF THE GROUND.

What single contribution did the Opposition make to the betterment of Canadian public affairs in the six months' session of Parliament which closed in April? What principle of government did they proclaim? What line of policy did they champion? What alternatives did they offer to proposals made by the Government? In short, what did they return to the people of Canada as reward for the trust imposed in them and the opportunity given them? Or what justification did they give of their existence as a party in the House?

In the matter of expenditure, always a matter of supreme public importance, what was the Opposition policy? The budget speech was delivered early in the session and every opportunity offered for full discussion of this important question. Yet the debate closed in a matter of a few hours and left the Opposition on record simply as finding fault with the Government for the large expenditure but without assuming the responsibility of saying where retrenchment should be made, or even committing themselves to a policy of retrenchment. They were ready to condemn others but had nothing to offer for themselves.

The tariff was revised during the session and here, if ever, Mr. Borden and his followers had an opportunity for the development and elucidation of that "adequate tariff" of which they have talked glibly but mystically for years. Yet even on this question Mr. Borden was unable to hold his followers in hand. While the dominant contingent from the manufacturing centers of Ontario stood ever and always for lowering the tariff, the western Conservatives annihilated their leader and declared their wish of confidence in him and his tariff policy by voting against him in the division on the farm implement duty for years. Yet even on this question Mr. Borden was unable to hold his followers in hand. While the dominant contingent from the manufacturing centers of Ontario stood ever and always for lowering the tariff, the western Conservatives annihilated their leader and declared their wish of confidence in him and his tariff policy by voting against him in the division on the farm implement duty for years.

What was their attitude toward western development? Uncompromising hostility to the policy of the Government to be sure, but what had they to offer instead of this? The immigration policy was censured and maligned from the system of carrying on the work to the character of the immigrants themselves. The new Lands Act was denounced as black-and-white as an atrocious robbery of the country for the benefit of the wealthy western farmer. What the Government proposed, that the Opposition opposed, but what had they to offer for themselves and in place of this proposal?

This ineptitude of the Opposition is in very large measure due to the influence and the record of the "Cull" findings of the Insurance Commission provided them with too much work of a personal and party nature to leave much time for attention to public business. They were too busy hunting up scandals with which to effect the doings of Mr. Foster and his associates to devote themselves to the development of a public policy or to sustained effort in the furtherance of the public interests. Their first thought was to save themselves; their second to defend their opponents; the country got what time and attention they had left. Naturally this was a pretty small proportion.

It is doubtful if a political party in Canada ever more richly deserved annihilation on the ground of general uselessness than does the Federal Opposition. They have lost, apparently, all thought of developing a public policy, have lost even the knowledge that a policy is needed, or of what constitutes a policy, and have become simply an association of men trying to blot out the characters of their opponents, whether in public or private life, simply for the purpose of perpetuating their own useless existence in the House of Commons.

THE BETTER WAY.

The special committee of the council did well to recommend the investigation of the Tarman-Maclean affair by a judge and the council did well to accept the recommendation.

Investigation of the conduct of a fellow-alderman is neither pleasant nor profitable occupation for members of a council, and at present the city council of Edmonton has plenty of work on hand without undertaking any unnecessary extras. It should be more satisfactory to all parties concerned, too, to have the matter investigated and adjudged by a court than by a body of men largely untrained in conducting investigations and in sifting blame.

AN ECONOMY.

Incidentally the postponement of having should prove to be an economy when the gas plant is being installed. The laying of the mains will mean another wholesale disruption of the streets—the last and final, let us hope. Where the work is carried on along paved streets, it means expense to the city, if not in replacing the pavement, at least in the damage to the pavement. Once these pipes are in, we should be pretty nearly through with the tunnelling and trenching operations in the more settled portions of the city, and may lay paving with some hope of leaving it undisturbed.

ON THE SIDE.

It is now up to the Calgary papers to announce that that city has had a fair census.

Said Maclean has 100 wives. Wonder if his "capture" by Russell was arranged?

It cost a Calgary man $50 and costs to find out that an Indian can get drunk on hard cider.

The Calgary census men calculated there were 25,000 people in that city this week. Deducting the 5000 visitors to the Fair, this should be about right.

Each delegate at the Hague appears to have come to the conclusion that he can't do anything to hasten the peace-arrangement.

The Mail and Empire would export all immigrants who "confine their ardor to parasite employments that do not conduce to the general wealth." Another sly jab at Mr. Foster and his speculating associates.

Russell, the Moroccan bandit, has captured Kaid Maclean, lately chief of the Sultan's bodyguard, and formed a British office. How highly Russell values the British soldier is made clear from the fact that he demands $200,000 for Kaid's release.

It is recalled that some years since a political convention in the United States cheered a message from the State Department, assuring it that a serious Moroccan incident would end with "Perfidia alive or Russell dead." At latest reports the last-named gentleman was doing business at the old stand.

STATISTICS AND EXPERIENCE.

Toronto Globe.

Under the high tariff regime we had unlimited prosperity.

When men were leaving at such a rate that the Dominion could not retain even the natural increase of population, formidable arrays of figures were published by the Census Bureau showing the Dominion to be in a thriving and flourishing condition. If a man complained that he was out of work and could get nothing to do he was told that the exports were exceeding the imports by growing and expanding millions. If a factory had to discharge employees and leave machinery idle the proprietors were assured that their production was higher than at any time in the country's history, and must be increased at the next session. The merchant who found his business dwindling was told that the volume of foreign trade was entirely satisfactory and the favorable balance was on the increase. At a banquet in Toronto toward the close of the regime Sir Wilfrid Laurier, after being regaled with long arrays of figures culled from the blue book, and he expected to be able to give the people a prosperity that would make the statistics demonstration. That promise has been absolutely fulfilled, as statistics, commercial houses, manufacturing industries and labor are unanimous in their testimony. Every interest feels the influence of the conduct of the government.

It is worthy of note that the politicians and journals who in the days of distress look most satisfaction in recounting the evidences of statistical prosperity are now extracting long columns of data returns to detect signs of adversity. The London Free Press argues that "home labor is displaced or not employed when imports are so much in excess of exports." This is a conclusion from the great excess of imports over exports. It is statistical distress. The man who looks around for the home labor that is displaced or not employed cannot find it. He finds the home labor all employed, and swarms of foreign labor fought for by employers in the railway stations. It is rather hard on the statisticians themselves, but theories must always give way when confronted with facts. The extensive imports represent a preparatory stage. We are building rail ways, enlarging factories, establishing new industries and requiring for all these productive activities on an unprecedented scale. When we begin to liquidate our debt and leave us in a new and higher position among the producing nations. At we were not satisfied with statistical prosperity, we need not take alarm at statistical adversity.

CAMPING.

Oh a camper's life is the life for me, Hurrah for the airy tent. It is there, my brethren, I joy to be in recreation tent. I can wear old pants of the forest kind. With holes in the knees and a patch behind.

Convinced that none of my friends will mind, No matter how large the tent. Oh a camper's life is the life for me, It is a bliss without alloy. I can go in swimming from ten till three. As when I was a boy. And then when the blazing day is done I can carry wood like a son-of-a-gun, And then I'm having a lot of fun, A barrel full of joy.

Oh a camper's life is the life for me, The butter is soft as oil. I fish out flies with agility, And my temper begins to boil. And the dew is touched with an earthy smell, And I find a water-melon in the well, And what I say, I relate to tell. This column I must not sell.

Oh a camper's life is the life for me, Black beetles are in the soap. The ants to the sugar are gay and free, And Willie has got the camp. The merry mosquitoes joyfully laugh, As into my neck they sink the cuff, And the man in next tent has a pun, Ah, but to its awful whump.

Oh a camper's life is the life for me, It is raining hard today. And think of the jelly there must be, In keeping the flies away. The grub in wet soil and the bed is damp, And I cannot light the coal oil lamp, Oh there's nothing so sweet as a rainy camp. It's better than a play.

Oh a camper's life is the life for me, (This line is an airy fiction.) In a good brick house I prefer to be, Where there isn't so blame much friction. I'm rather sore from mosquito bites, So I like to see the electric lights, The toilet ears and the city rights, And I will without restriction.—Toronto News.

PRODUCERS' ASSOCIATION PRESENT CASE TO BEEF COMMISSION

The Erskine Session of Commission Adduces Evidence to the Effect That Stock Growers' Association is Negotiating to Ship Direct to Old Country—Geo. F. Root not in Favor of Government Ownership of Sleds and Packing Plants—Mr. Puffer Defends Contract System

That correspondence, Mr. Root, July 11.—The chairman of the Erskine session of the Beef Commission, Mr. Geo. F. Root, today attended the meeting of the commission at the Hotel Windsor, and was the first to speak. He was in growing little cattle town today. He was not in favor of the commission's plan of having the commission buy the cattle and sell them at a profit. He was in favor of the commission's plan of having the commission buy the cattle and sell them at a profit.

Mr. Root explained that the stock growers' association had been in communication with several of the city clerks of the English cities, who had encouraged them in direct exportation through reliable commission houses named by the city clerks. After the Red Deer convention the association communicated with twelve local buyers of British cattle, and received favorable replies from them all.

Mr. Root asked the witness how the association could secure local buyers in the city. He thought if they could not secure it at Montreal, Quebec, or St. John, they would have no difficulty in securing it at Boston or Portland, Maine.

A black and white illustration of a man with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, looking upwards and to the left. He is standing next to a large, dark, cylindrical object that resembles a fuel tank or a large pipe. The object has some rivets or bolts visible on its side. The man's expression is one of interest or concern.

A black and white illustration of a man in a suit and tie, bent over and using a long crowbar to pry open a heavy metal safe. The safe is partially open, revealing a dark interior. The man is looking down at the safe with a determined expression. The background is simple, with a tiled floor and a wall.

UNSHINE FURNACE

times, you will recognize more completely the ease and advantage of the Sunshine method. The illustrations hint at the difference.

On many furnaces the fire-pots slope, forming a rest on which the ashes accumulate.

As ashes are non-conductors of heat they prevent the fire-pot from radiating as much heat as it should; they clog up the draft and deaden the fire.

But the Sunshine fire-pot is a wonderful radiator of heat. No ashes can cling to the straight, sheer sides of its fire-pot. The live, red-hot coals are always snug up to them. There is nothing to prevent the radiation of every unit of heat produced by the fuel.

The Sunshine is the most scientifically and perfectly constructed furnace. It radiates most heat with less consumption of fuel.

DEATH OF JAMES A. WRIGHT. The death of Mr. James Wright, furniture dealer, occurred yesterday at his home, 422 Fraser avenue, after a long illness. He was 46 years of age, and his death was a great loss to the bereaved family in their affliction.

Mr. Wright, who had come out to Detroit some months ago to undergo serious operation, coming quite well for a short time after his return, but was suddenly taken ill a few weeks ago, and has lain rapidly since that time.

The body was removed to the mortuary chambers of Moffatt & McCoplen to await the arrival of Mr. Chas. Wright, son of the deceased, and his father, who are married and reside in the Western States. They are expected to arrive early next week.

The members of the family who reside in the city are the widow of the deceased, and her daughters, Mrs. Wright, the talented artist, and Miss Melba Wright. Mr. Wright, who came originally from Ontario, had lived in Winnipeg several years before coming to Edmonton.

A MUSICAL COMEDY. To those who enjoy a good musical comedy, The Frisk of New York, which will be the attraction at the Edmonton Opera House on Monday July 14th, for one week and Saturday matinee, is the best thing offered this season. The phenomenon of "The Frisk of Eden," a diat, has been declared to be well worth the price of admission. Yet to select any one number from the many would be a very hard matter, for without exception each number is applauded to the echo. The special feature of the performance is the singing and dancing of the famous "Broadway Girl" chorus, who form the prettiest beauty chorus ever seen on the stage. The production is complete, and to those who enjoy good music and a good laugh, offers a pleasure and entertainment. On Wednesday and Thursday "The Girl from Frisco," on Friday and Saturday "The Girl from Now."

LAST RITES OVER MAH KIVE WOO

Quiet Ceremony at Funeral of Chinaman Friday-Remains Interred in Edmonton Cemetery

The quietest of ceremonies marked the funeral yesterday afternoon of the late Mah Kive Woo, a son of the Celestial Kingdom, who died at Wetaskiwin a few days ago, and who today was brought up to Edmonton for burial. The ceremonies were those of the followers of Confucius, for Mah Woo was not a Christian.

About thirty of the deceased's countrymen followed the hearse from the Alberta undertaking parlors on First street to Edmonton cemetery. Arrived at the grave the Chinese gathered solemnly about the place of interment. The coffin was then lowered, and a pall carried to the edge of the grave by one of the men. From this pall they then unpacked some clothing of home-made silk, chicken, tiny Japanese oranges, sticks of the sugar cane and bamboo.

These were lightly sprinkled with a dark liquid, and in turn each of the Chinese present laid a wreath over the lot four times in prayer. He was asking the dead a happy resting-place in the world beyond the grave.

Then, with fitting solemnity, there was lowered into the grave this food, the clothes and personal belongings of Mah Woo, and this thirty-man band stood about the grave lighting the Ning sticks of incense and burning stashed papers of silver and gold coins. These papers were then brightly up through the ether, going before Mah Woo to the next world.

The men who buried these bones that Mah Woo, arriving there, would find plenty of ceremonial gold and silver—for these had all cost money—to supply his needs.

For the same reason a few bits of silver had been dropped into the coffin the day before and all the well-wishers of the dead man who could not attend the funeral gave his brother money to provide much bamboo and much gold and silver paper.

The deceased was a cook, who had been in the country for 15 years, two of which years he spent in Regina. A few weeks ago he went to Wetaskiwin, and last week was taken suddenly very ill. A doctor was called in, but he died next day.

He lived a wife and family, who lived in China, whom he visited at long intervals, but to whom he sent money regularly. At the time of his death he had only $50 left.

It is a curious fact that a Chinaman cannot rest in perfect peace when his remains are interred in unconsecrated ground. But this is true Mah Kive Woo is the sixth Chinese who is not resting quietly, for five of his countrymen are without any warning the victims of
